Hello Sydney Water. People are generally thankful for taxes and fees for services in the community, but to a certain extent as well. The Cost of Living is sky rocketing in all areas as we all know and people more and more people and families simply just 'make do' with what we get, as in wages, pensions, social security benefits etc. With our water bills going up i feel that people will just have to make do more and more. People will again have to make decisions to reduce consumption with, Things like; Watering the garden, Flushing the toilet, Having less showers, Not wash things so much, Reduce use of washing machine by wearing clothes for extra days. So i feel it could impact peoples health domestically, and also not to mention business and commercial services. Business's as well will reduce consumption in many ways. So will this create business's decisions to not wash food stuffs etc. Will business's not clean premises and stocked food as needed. Will this put the communities health at risk ?. People domestically and business' will have to do without and reduce consumption. I hope that the Environment and peoples health will not suffer. Water is so critical to life, also our pets, livestock, and animals we feed. I hope this idea of increasing water bills so much will not affect our environment and all our health to the extent we simply will 'just have to make do' and we suffer in many different ways not even thought of. Kind regards. Thank you. Andrew r.
