

Author name: W. Starr

Date of submission: Wednesday, 10 May 2017

Submission: Wholesale electricity rates have increased considerably over the last year while feed in rates for home solar systems have not changed. Isn't it time that feed in rates reflected the wholesale rate + the savings that retailers make on not having to make use of transmission infrastructure to deliver electricity to where it is used. An adjustable rate reflecting both of these elements would be fairer for everyone.