

Author name: Anonymous

Date of submission: Sunday, 29 December 2013

Submission: I read in today's Sun Herald that people are missing their Aircraft flights from Sydney because in delays waiting for their taxi to arrive.I have been driving Cabs for 41/2 years and completely refute this allegation. I start about 4am each morning at Strathfield and every Airport job through booking a cab in this area is picked up within 10 mins. The only reason people could miss their flights is the traffic congestion in the airport precinct on Monday mornings. A shame Macquarie bank won't spend some money to alleviate this problem.I agree that there would be delays in the city waiting for booked taxis and this is due to the fact that in most cases the taxi would have to park illegally waiting for his fare and funny little fellows with cameras are waiting for this to happen.Quickly do you realise that LPG prices increased by 20% recently.Don't hesitate to contact me if you require information about what happens in the Taxi industry.